TRANSCRIPTION OF ATTACHED HANDWRITTEN LETTER OF SUPPORT FROM JACOB JONES

My name is Jacob Jones, I am writing this on behalf of my wife, Graziela Jones.

Simply put, she's a total wifey. Her level of respect and care is unmatched. From being just friends at first, always cooking, checking on me. Always getting into deep conversations about our hopes/dreams and future goals to literally manifesting it all to reality. We would stay up till 3 am on work nights talking about how we were going to design our house to literally doing it. Of course some rough debates, but surprisingly so much more collaboration and shared opinions. We have the perfect plans for our new build house we're working on and all the other builds to come.

More importantly though, how did we get here? What started as a shy crush from barely knowing each other, just staring across the friends group, to loving, laughing, fighting like a 40 year old couple LOL. I truly knew we would make it here, especially after my accident...

Christmas Eve of 2025 I was involved in a rather serious motorcycle accident. Apparently one of the very first things to come out of my mouth the night of being hit and the day I woke up in the hospital, I was asking about Grazi. "Tell her what happened, she'll be mad I haven't text back all day".

But beyond me, Grazi's true colors shown. She had unfortunately left for North Dakota prior to my accident to visit family. However the day she discovered my condition she tried to schedule a flight back. Constantly staying updated with my family, she eventually moved in with me while I was renting with my brother to help care for me while he was working to keep our business steady.

Two months in a wheelchair, two months in a cane, and a month with a ridiculously looking back brace. She was my right hand the entire time. Far beyond basic needs like helping me shower, cook, clean, taking care of the pets, she sustained my mental.

As a very, very active guy, I got utterly depressed after the injuries. Still trying to get back to where I was physically and she has managed to essentially save me. Constantly trying to get me out of the house, cute dates, etc. Even with a cane or ridiculous back brace, she walked proudly by my side everywhere, and always will.

Now, all things considered, I've found the one. Countless things I could say, so many friends and family that stand by her side, especially after everything she's proved of herself.

Everyday we try, always finding a new sport or game to try. She loves tennis and wall ball now. Loves to cruise on the bike with me. We cook together all the time, every week trying new recipes. With all the stress, my current physical condition, building a house, running a business and planning our future. She has truly stepped into her role and shown she's worth every bit of it.

Currently trying to learn portuguese. Very hard but fun, she refers to majority of things in Portuguese to help. As much as I correct her on english pronunciation she's very fluent, to the point I call her American to tease LOL. Her mother plans to visit when we move into our new build. So a huge goal is to hold atleast a couple minute conversations with her mother. As we do essentially everything though. We have gotten very good at getting involved in every aspect of life together, as we should.

She's a little spicy, damn latinass. But I would do anything for her, as we both try everyday...

Letter

As Graziela's mother, I've always tried to protect her from all the prejudice there is in Brazil. I did a lot of bad things to my daughter myself, but I deeply regret it, and that is why I believe that the best and safest place for her to be is to continue in the United States, along with her husband. Yes, she did get married, and they are happy, building a life and a house. She helped him when he suffered a severe motorcycle accident. As a mother, I think my main goal is to protect my children and now I see that the best thing for my daughter is to stay in a safe place, so I believe it wouldn't be smart to send her back to a totally prejudiced and transphobic country, because this would lead her to a cruel future and with no perspective.

Carta

eu como mãe Graziela sempre tentei protegê-la de todo o preconceito que existe no Brasil eu mesma cometi vários atos ruins com a minha filha quando ela tava aqui mas eu me arrependo muito e por isso eu acho que o melhor lugar pra ela e o mais seguro teria que continuar nos Estados Unidos com o seu marido porque ela sim se casou e tão felizes então construindo uma vida construindo uma casa ela o ajudou quando ele sofreu um acidente gravíssimo de moto então eu acho que como mãe o meu principal objetivo é proteger os meus filhos e agora eu entendo que o melhor para minha filha é continuar num lugar seguro então eu acredito que não seja inteligente mandar ela de volta pra um país totalmente preconceituoso e transpo isto a levaria para um futuro cruel e sem nenhuma perspectiva.

Letter

I would like to begin this letter by speaking about my daughter and how much I want the best for her. She is very happy; she got married and now has her husband, and they are building a life together in a country that is relatively safe for transgender people, which is not the case in Brazil, an extremely dangerous country for anyone whose religion or gender identity does not conform to societal norms, which can even lead to death, and this is not what I want for my daughter, who is only 23 years old. I want her and her husband to live well in the home they are building; I want to see them happy, and they have mentioned the possibility of having children one day, and I do not want anything to jeopardize that possibility. I do not want her life to be ruined by forcing her to return to a country where she no longer belongs and which certainly will not provide her with any kind of safety; therefore, as her father, I respectfully ask that you allow my daughter to have a normal and safe life with her husband.

My name is Felipe, and I am Graziela's cousin. I have been close to her since we were children. I witnessed firsthand the prejudice and discrimination she faced at school and throughout her life, even before her transition. I can only imagine how much worse it would have been if she had transitioned back then.

I also recently moved to the United States, and I am proof that her life here is much better. She is being productive and has a very bright future ahead of her. She wants to dedicate her life to working in a hospital and helping others. She is now married and building a life with someone she loves. I truly believe it would be a mistake to send her back to a place where she no longer belongs
